Jottings
The son of an umbrella maker, he was reputedly a plumber by trade and a good amateur singer
Attended Welleck Road School in Newcastle
The 1881 Census records him as living with his mother Margaret (26) at an umbrella shop at 204 Scotswood Road, Elswick (in Northumberland), along with William Douglass (50 - his grandfather, an engine fitter), Jane Douglass (50 - his grandmother, an umbrella dealer), Elizabeth Gray (28 - his mother's sister) and her two daughters Jane Gray (10) and Mary Gray (7) - but there was no mention of his father or Mr Gray
The 1891 Census records him still living at the same address with his grandparents, his mother and his cousin Mary Gray (18)
The 1901 Census records him as a plumber living as a boarder at 90 Blenheim Street, Westgate, Newcastle upon Tyne
Scored on his Football League debut for Barnsley
Was at Southampton on trial only - no first team appearances
Played in the professional Croydon Common club's first competitive match
Played in Croydon Common's first F.A. Cup match
One of the only two players to appear on merit in Croydon Common's first and last professional seasons; the other was George Hunter
Played in West Stanley's first North Eastern League match, a 3-1 away win against Sunderland's 3rd XI on 1.9.1906 - the club's first season with the "West" prefix
Held the Croydon Common record for total league appearances (246), total league goals (81), total F.A. Cup appearances (19), total appearances (276) and total goals (88)
Appeared for Croydon Common in 11 minor cup matches, scoring 2 goals
His four appearances for Merthyr Town, under the managership of former Croydon Common team mate HARRY HADLEY, were against Brentford (H), Watford (A), Plymouth (A) and Newport County (A)
Gained two Southern League Division 2 and one Southern Football Alliance championship medals with Croydon Common
Selected for the South v. North, but illness robbed him of the honour
May have owned a motor cycle business in Croydon as an advertisement appears in the club handbook for 1909-10 for "Barnfather, Bale & Co" showing several motorbikes with sidecars, one of which appears to have Dave Gardner on board - although Percy had moved to Norwich City by this time.
The 1911 Census records him living in The Leslie Arms, 62 Lower Addiscombe Road, Croydon along with fellow Commoner John Christie
At the time of his enlistment, he quoted his occupation as "engineer" and gave his home address as 25 Kenilworth Rd, Newcastle; although it would appear that, in December 1914, he was still living at The Leslie Arms and he also gave that address when he married in 1918
On enlistment, was recorded as 5ft 3¼ in height, weighing 9st 0lb and with a chest measurement of 36 inches - and he gave his next-of-kin as Mistress Graham, his cousin
In WW1, rose from Private (F/43) to Captain in the 17th Battalion Middlesex Regiment (Footballers' Battalion) and won the Military Cross
On 2 December 1916, a dinner was held at the Greyhound Hotel in Croydon to honour his elevation from the ranks to an officer and local dignitaries presented him with a silver cigarette case, an amber mouthpiece and a silver mounted briar pipe
Appeared at outside left for Chelsea (along with former Commoner, Robert Thomson) in the club's 1-0 home defeat to Crystal Palace in the London Combination on 10.11.1917
The award of his Military Cross was announced on Page 30 of the London Gazette of 1.1.1918, which was published on 28.12.1917
In March 1918, married Evelyn Harris, the daughter of one of the Croydon Common directors (and lied about his age on the certificate, saying he was 35 and not 39!)
The 1921 Census saw him living at 27 Vernon Lodge, Dagnell Park, Croydon, his father in law's home, along with his wife Evelyn
The 1939 Register records him as a commercial traveller, living with his wife and two youngest children at 13 Eileen Road, Croydon; but he incorrectly gave his birth year as 1882
Had three children - Donald P. (b.1919), Evelyn Muriel (b.1920/d.2002) and Cyril (b.1928/d.2008)
From 1938 to 1951, lived very close to The Nest in a house that once belonged to Richard Whiting, a Croydon Common director
Worked as a clerical officer for the Ministry of Supply before retirement and was a keen bowler in later life
Died of stomach cancer and is buried in Croydon Cemetery, just around the corner from the site of the foundation of the amateur Croydon Common club
The Western Mail said that he possessed "a pretty style and keen sense of opportunism"
A restless and sensitive bantam
